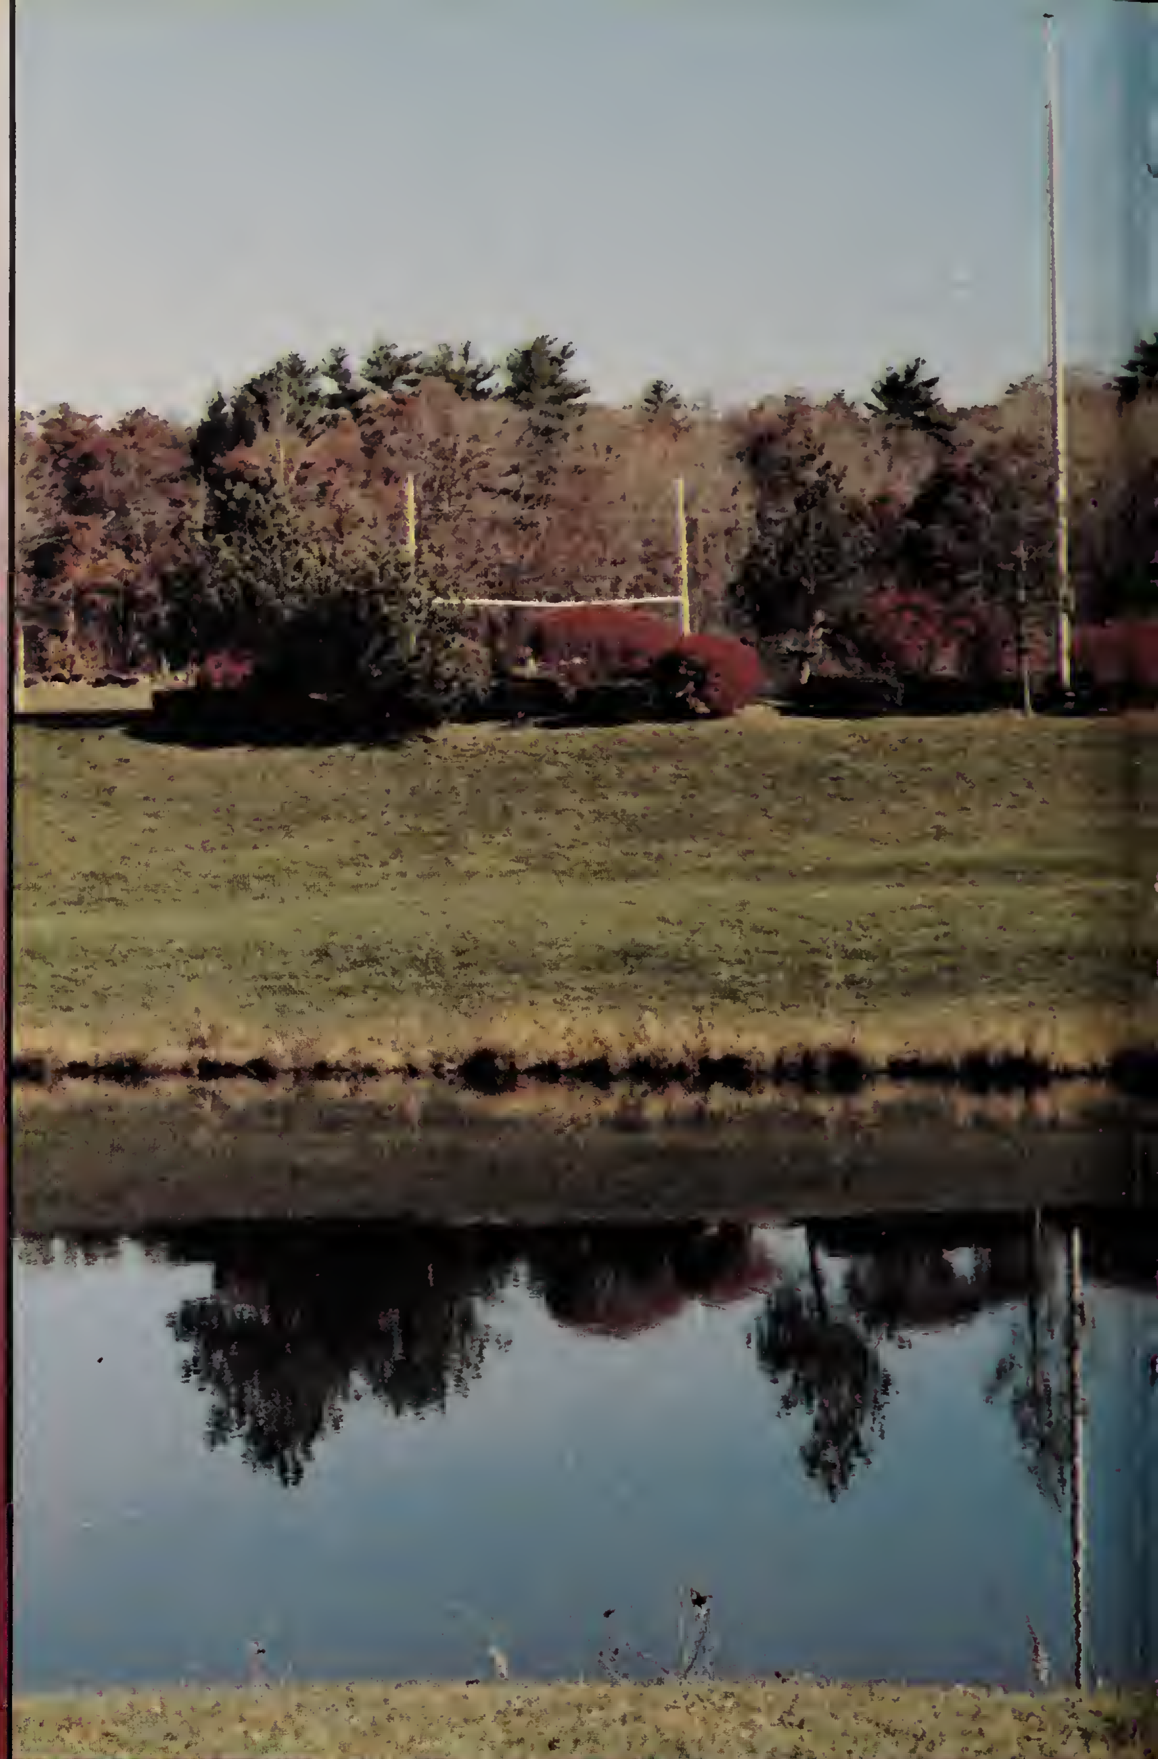
VOLUME III

Uh . . . no this really is not all our trash, Mr. Gearan.



[illegible] is a [illegible]

[illegible] things that are [illegible] many times in [illegible] world are lines. There are lines that appear everywhere as things become more and more graphic. It also seems that we are forever waiting in lines. A large percent of our lives are spent either in lines, hearing lines, or looking at lines.

You put these two things together and you get this year's theme, CLASSIC LINES. A classic line can be anything from a certain quote that is christened, "That's a classic!", to a line that at one time or another everyone waits in. Our lives are full of lines and full of classics, but until you put them together, you don't see any significance in either.

We, the editors, feel that if you choose, you can find many a classic line in your high school experience. Consider this yearbook a challenge for you to pick what you feel are "CLASSIC LINES" and remember them, as we have tried to do.

LEFT: Don't worry about the crazies in the street, Dad; I promise I'll drive on the sidewalk. ABOVE: Wildcats form their defense line for a victorious showing.

There is no joy like that of spending a day in Beantown. Your journey starts at Riverside, where you and your friends wait in line to get tokens. You get on the Green line and patiently await that familiar stop - Park Street.

You stand up at exactly the right time, so as not to look too excited, you've been to Boston thousands of times, right? By this time you've decided on Harvard Square, and run down the Red line stairs, just in the nick of time to catch the next train. Of course, the Garage is the first place to hit; and no one has LP's like Newberry Comics. Across the street there's Urban Outfitter's simply waiting to eat your money. After cleaning out Harvard, the T is waiting to take you to Copley Place. After a look at the Hancock, you go into the Plaza where you spend the rest of your money.

Of course, by the time you get on the Green line to go home, the train is packed. Fortunately, as Chestnut Hill comes around, you may get a seat. Riverside is the next stop and you're nearly home. Gratefully, you hop down the steps and sink into the backseat of the Buick. You're dead, but happy!

Around November, you consider bagging" college; and by December, the mere mention of the word "college" causes seniors to cower and cringe.

When reality rolls around, with choices made and applications sent, there is a collective let down. Seniors begin making comments such as: "Gee, I don't think I'll go to class today, like I haven't done any homework in three weeks, anyway."

When asking seniors, "What comes to mind when you think of second semester senior year?", the all around answer is a resounding, "Party . . . "

Top Of The Line

A picnic lunch was provided for students on the first day of school.

When you think of the town of Weston, you might visualize the Town Green, leafy trees and large houses. Everytime you go through the Center you may sarcastically comment about our "bustling metropolis". The same could be said for our high school. There's barely 700 students and everyone knows everyone else. Weston High School is one of the few schools that can boast fitting it's entire student body into the auditorium. O.K., so it's small and teeny, but it's really not that bad.

If any of you ever went to the music concerts, you'd find we have many talented Westonites. The plays are extremely entertaining, too.

Tradition is a large part of Weston. One of our biggest traditions is the Weston-Wayland Thanksgiving Day game. We start by eating pancakes flipped by the senior class. Actually, I have a cousin from Wayland and we fight constantly, during Thanksgiving dinner, about our teams, until my dad threatens to lock us in the basement. I don't care what my cousin says . . . Weston rules!

There's a lot to Weston High School, although it may not be immediately obvious. People may have to put out a little effort to find what they're looking for, but, hey, we're worth the trouble.

Within The Lines

ABOVE: Wildcat mascot, Kim Chandler, shows what Weston spirit can be. LEFT: Seniors, who are supposed to lead the school into the academic year, have a hard time letting go of summer.

Joanna, Alyce and Leslie warm themselves on the rocks in Gloucester.

Considering all the places that Weston High students can be found, the beach remains one of the major pastimes in weekend relaxation. During the fall, it is a haven for those who still believe that summer lingers; and come spring, the anticipation of cool sand and warm sun sets off a major migration to one's favorite beach.

Versatility is a major contributor to the beach's popularity. It can be used as a playground, your nearest tanorama, a place for a good nap, a swimming pool, a hunting ground for the person of your dreams, a campsite and a barbeque. Ambitious people (usually seniors) find that to satisfy their desires, it is a necessity to combine all of the above for the ultimate experience. But just about everybody can enjoy the beach, and as is the case for Weston, everybody does.

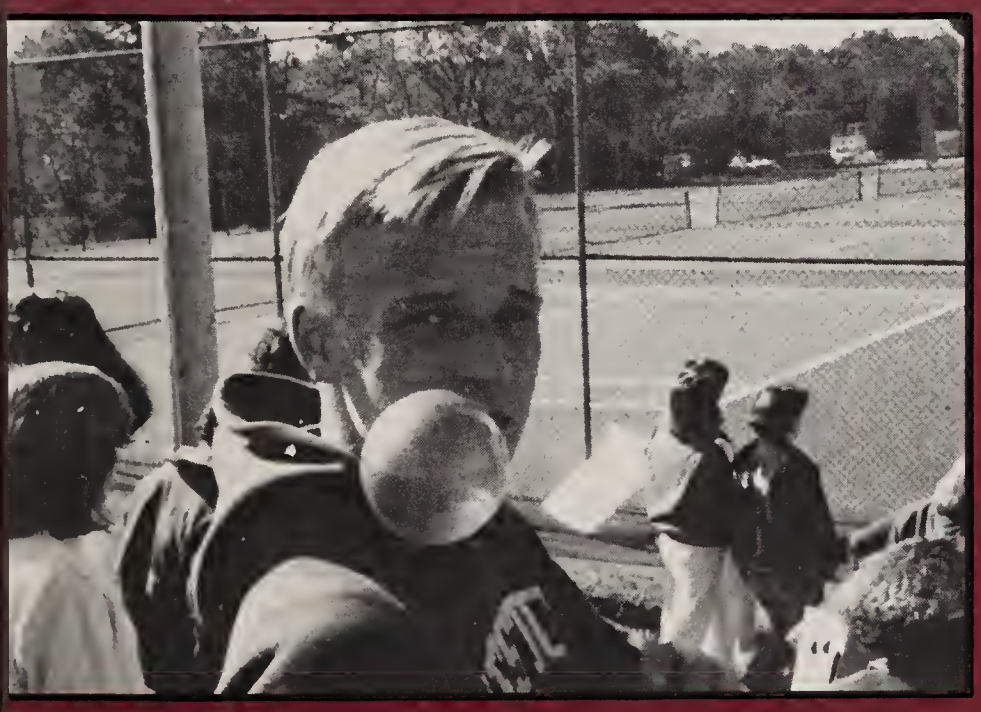
Would you do it for a Scooby Snack? Ya, ya, ya, ya!

Classic lines are endless. They come from teachers: "He stopped so quick, he had to push the paint back,"-Mr. Duncan; "What would you do if your cat said . . . Monopoly"-Mr. Hartmann. They come from party talk "I could drive home right now, if I could just find the car,"-Student. We hear them in movies: "Ssshhh . . . I'm trying to use the phone,"-P.W.H.; and from Saturday morning entertainment, "Let's smurf a party,"-Clumsy Smurf. For some, these lines are meaningless, for others, there's no end to the laughter . . .

To our parents, a classic line might be, "To be or not to be - that is the question." But for a high school student, a classic line might be, "What would you do for a Klondike Bar?" No matter if you're "huntin' wabbits", or looking at frozen chicken and saying "parts is parts", a classic line can be found in most everything we do or say.

TOP: I will love him, and hug him, and squeeze him, and call him George. ABOVE: Let's just be friends.

What's My Line?



TOP: Exit stage left. ABOVE: I know you are but what am I?

ABOVE: I hate that!

The Club Durant

Knock twice

When I think back on our Junior Prom, one of the things I remember about was how much fun we had disguising the cafeteria before the prom, as well as the fun during and after the prom itself. We converted the cafeteria into the Club Durant, a Twenties' nightclub-speakeasy. Students danced to the music of No Secrets, in a happy upbeat atmosphere. Most people were dressed up in the traditional prom style, but the few who were in the fashions of the period, really showed the spirit of the night.

The 1985 Junior Prom was the first prom to ever make money. With the help of Dr. Houde and Mrs. Potter, the class advisors, it seemed as though everyone had a date. It was interesting to see who ended up going to the prom with whom - a surprise here, a sure thing there.

Anyway, the Club Durant turned out to be a event which could not be missed, not just by the Class of '86, but by everyone.

Fashion Lines

Evan Reynolds and Linc Kinnicut show their simple style while conversing in front of the school.

Does everyone at Weston High dress the same? YES! Okay, maybe not everyone. There are some people who dress differently. Walking down the hall, you may sight some flourescent tiger prints or pink hair. Don't be shocked if you see super jocks in sweats one day and in skirts the next. It's an unwritten law to dress up before a game.

Keep walking down the hall and you'll see a few ripped T-shirts near the door, with sweeping black capes nearby. Groups of giggling sophomores, in matching ESPRIT outfits, cannot be missed. That sea of red isn't a colony of ants, just the football team clad in their nylon uniforms.

The big fad this year has been those indestructable plastic bracelets that everyone MUST have. You're no one without one or two. These bracelets are noiseless, black rubbery things. They're like the rings you get from your car engine and not worth a dime, but everyone wears them. They're IN. This commodity is in contrast with another fad—rhinestones. Why pay $20 for something that isn't even real? I don't know, but "they're in!"

ACTIVITIES

We're Active

The Student Activities Center at Weston High School coordinates, initiates, sponsors, and promotes approximately 100 activities or events each school year. Weston High School has long been an institution that categorizes extracurricular activities as a high priority in the academic life of students. Annually, nearly 95% of the student body is engaged in some school activity other than courses, with the highest number, not surprisingly, being involved in athletics. Traditionally, the non-athlectic activities with the largest membership are the International Club, Theatre, Yearbook, Student Government, and Marching Band. The offerings in the Music Department are essentially taken for course credit, and many students participate in the various choral and instrumental groups. Activity and athletic involvement run anywhere from one student to, in the case of athletics, 500 students, proving that no activity is too small to be included in the school program. Regarding student government, the Activities Center sponsors student leadership training sessions for class officers, advisors, class mothers, and student council members.

Although the kinds of activities change from year to year, reflecting student interest, Weston High School continues to be a place that is rich in extracurricular offerings.

Deadlines

You're lookin' at it. The pride and joy and terror of the 1986 staff of Panorama. Very few things have given us as much grief and satisfaction all in one breath. The Yearbook staff is a dedicated, hard-working group of kids, many of whom generally spend a large part of their lives in room 2. Not everyone can be a pest to the seniors (about quotes), a dear to Mr. McDonald and Mr. Barclay (about announcements and special activities) and at the same time be in ten different places during one conference period. This spread is dedicated to all those who gave us their time and cooperation. Not everyone can accomplish what we did, and those who helped us are definitely something special. We feel it was worth our effort. For what other extra-curricular activity creates and captures an entire year to appreciate somewhere else down the line? -The Editors

Governing Bodies

The National Honor Society is a prestigious society of people who put their formidable intellectual powers to good use by stuffing envelopes. Stuffing 200 envelopes for the graduates' reception was only a prelude to what came next, stuffing 4000 envelopes at Jon's house on a Saturday for Mr. Ed Taff! But these ingenious young people were not without entertainment in this monotonous job. Jon provided the the pickles and Dan blasted his Talking Heads tape. Alyce, Betsey and Arlene all lost their minds. Sarah had to be tracked down and dragged to Jon's house where she too was reduced to a vegetable by hours of letter stuffing. The twelve new members are undoubtably glad that they too are new members of the National Letter Stuffers Society.

Crowd Pleasers

CHEERLEADERS-This was a wonderful football season,
and if we had to come up with a reason,
It was not only the players who were tops,
But our "rowdy" fans, good old mom and pops.
No matter where we played, or what the weather,
Their spirit kept the team together.
You had a great year, you were all on the beam,
Due to the effort of coaches and team.
Along with Coach Neild we think you did fine,
And as you know we like to "Party all the Time."

Dedication is one word that sums up the majorettes. Working traditionally from 2:45 to 5:00 daily, these twelve girls showed tremendous school spirit. From the homecoming game to the Thanksgiving game, they continuously showed their support either by twirling, or weather forbidding, by spectating. The majorettes could be seen at every game. At the pep rally, the majorettes performed a series of routines to represent their unending school spirit, and at Thanksgiving they continued to support their school by twirling frozen batons in the middle of a snow storm. Being a majorette is one sport in which you work hard and at the same time have fun and support the school!

Something bade of the bizarre when, instead of the normal missing flute or piccolo in the early fall, a whole tuba disappeared from its shelf. This year's orchestra was sure to be different. Not only did Mr. Mori establish a weekly string orchestra and string quartet, but he also doubled the size of the viola section, and sextupled the cello section. The orchestra attended a string instrument maintenance workshop in the winter given by local instrument restorer Jerry Weene, and some members even heard a concert in Symphony Hall. The music played on, even with all the year's activity, for the tuba was found mysteriously nearer the storage section for piccolos.

by Rob Fallon

Once upon a time there was a little trombone player who had no place to play. One day while attending Weston High School, he heard about Mr. Mori and his magical marching band. Finally the little lonesome trombone player had a place where he belonged. This young musician displayed the sentiment felt by the other band members in that they too had a place to play.

We're Notable

Boys' Chorus, thought of by many to be the best sounding because deep soulful men's voices are often prefered to squeeking or wailing women's voices, was able to maintain its good sound in '85-'86 although the number of boys decreased and many talented singers graduated the year before. As always, hard work was mixed with a lot of fun in preparing for our two big concerts, and as each concert approached, our nervousness led to much more hard work, since no one really wanted to embarrass themselves in an audience of one's parents and peers. No matter how we ended up sounding in the concert, the most important thing was that we knew we did our best and had fun doing it.

Despite the rampant squawks, shrieks, wails, and hiccoughs heard in the corridor outside of the auditorium, these sounds do eventually synthesize, under the direction of Mrs. Taggart, into a blend of harmoniouus voices of the prominent Girls' Glee Club. The girls' full, melodic voices sound better than the Boys' Chorus, hands down. We've decreased in size also, but the sections each worked harder to make up the loss of the graduates. Girls have far more problems during concert night than the boys (our hair, our skirts, our sashes), but we troopers make it through with flying colors. I guess the guys do okay, too.

Literary Lines

The editors were astounded by student enthusiasm for The Fourth Estate after about a third of the school signed up as staff during Activities Day. Unfortunately, few articles were submitted by the first deadline, and a roll of twenty-four photos taken specifically for The Fourth Estate yielded only twelve prints. However, the first issue finally came out in December, and the presses were finally rolling.

In reflection, The Fourth Estate had a successful year. Several good issues were published, and many excellent articles were written. The editors thank all who helped, especially the readers, Mr. Frank, and the entire staff.

Maelstrom is a whirlpool of thought and creativity transformed into a literary magazine. With Miss Busse's guidance, the Maelstrom staff reviews stories and poems submitted by students and faculty. The staff publishes the masterpieces in the renouned literary magazine. Do not miss this year's spectacular issue!

Lux Lumiere Luz, the foreign language literary magazine, is keeping its new image for a third consecutive year. The magazine is a collection of the best work of students in French, Spanish and Latin. The writing and illustrations in Lux Lumiere Luz are gathered from students in grades seven-twelve, creating a diverse choice of literature for the reader. Each spring, you can read fiction and poetry, learn about foreign cultures, laugh at cartoons and illustrations throughout the magazine or hear the opinions of students on various subjects.

This year we did something new. We combined the Spanish and French clubs together and formed the International Club. The merging of the two clubs has enabled us to have more international unity. As a result, the volleyball party, and selling candy and roses were done as one group. We've been able to sponsor activities for the French and Spanish exchange students in the spring. We belive that the international club is a better way to serve and benefit the language students of Weston High School.

Weird Science

Coming off a surprisingly successful season last year, the Math Team was optimistic this year despite the lack of seniors and experience, but was more than eager to face the challenge. Led by captains Kevin Chin and Allen Wang, a core of dedicated math enthusiasts devoted their time to weekly practice and hard work to represent Weston with respectibility. Besides competing in the Massachusetts Mathematics League, the math team also enjoyed success in the New England Competition.

Overall, this year can be looked upon as a rebuilding one, in which several starting competitors will be returning with valuable experience. We look to next year with great enthusiam!

A Musical World

Imagine taking twenty-five kids from all the different grades and cliques of Weston High School, dressing them up in what were supposed to be sixteenth century prison rags, and placing them all on stage with the hope of presenting both an enjoyable and meaningful play. This, I believe, is what resulted when Man of La Mancha was performed at Weston in late November, but this does not mean that the success of the play was assured from the beginning.

Many long hours were spent by everyone involved with the play in endless practices, from the very first dry reading (or should I say monologue) to the very last dress rehearsal, and nothing seemed either enjoyable or meaningful about learning lines and songs. But soon this initial boredom was overtaken by the great feeling that maybe we could pull it off.

Luckily for the members of the cast as well as the crew, there were many reasons for us to feel good about our play, whether it was our confidence in Joe Campbell, who played the part of Don Quixote with the "charmingly diagonal" style and finesse that we always knew he possessed, or just the fact that in two short months the whole cast had shared so many common experiences that a very strong feeling of friendship had grown in all of us; everyone who was involved with the play in any manner walked away with fond memories as well as some new friends.

We're In Business

A gray blanket of fog suspended over the sky and the school's halls were subsequently dreary - a typical Monday. As I navigated my way through the crowded science hall, a voice announced "will the following students come to the Main Office..." With a start, I realized that I was announcing that week.

I entered the main office and was handed my assigned announcements. I hoped that they were free of the usual typos, errors and vagueness. However, I had no such luck; my first message refered to a meeting "today during conference period". Unfortunately, there are no conference periods on Mondays. I made a hasty decision and continued, hoping that the meeting was tomorrow...

No one knows what it is; no one knows what it does; no one knows where it is. Well, here's the story, people. You join, buy stocks, sell items the officers buy with the stock money, and collect a percentage of the profits at the end of the year. Simple right? Stockyard had a bit of a problem getting started this year, but it finally got off the ground! After relocating opposite room 9, and purchasing new merchandise, Stockyard started to make a profit at last.

Save A Friend

Students Against Driving Drunk of Weston had it's most successful year ever. With over sixty members, S.A.D.D. was one of the largest organizations in school. Between programs, we were kept busy with fundraising, which netted over $1200 in the first two months alone. Thanks to Mr. Walter Kelleher, who donated the VCR for our Thanksgiving Day raffle, and all of the generous parents who donated money, we were able to put our ideas to work. We hope that our efforts will result in students thinking about drinking and driving. Remember, FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK.

The Black Student Union is stronger than ever this year. We have initiated two programs to help developing Metco students cope with the pressures of this demanding high school. To ease the racial tensions a human relations group is being set up. Both programs will hopefully make Weston High a better place. Even though it seems as if we just have fun, the members of the Black Student Union spend a lot of time seriously upgrading our lives at Weston High.

Mr. Gibson readies his smile.

We, the class of 1986, would like to express our deepest thanks and respect to our class advisor, Dr. Houde. He, and Mrs. Miller, began with us in our freshman year. As sophomores, we grew more confident and our advisors helped us with dances and a most successful car wash. At the end of that year Mrs. Miller left, so Mrs. Potter was called in to help. Together, they pushed and advised, helping the class of 1986 pull off one of the best proms ever. After junior year, Mrs. Potter relinquished her position to Mrs. Cottle. So, Dr. Houde, we are very grateful to you for sticking with us for four years. We're glad you've always been there and we know our graduation is in good hands.

It seems as you work your way through Weston High, you see more and more of Mrs. Sullivan. She often saw seniors crawl to her door, begging for aspirin, declaring that life was not worth it, nor was it unusual for her to apply the Heimlich Maneuver to seniors who had swallowed their applications. If you needed someone to talk to, Mrs. Sullivan was always there. Never would she refuse a bed to an overworked student, (well, almost never), and there's no better person to just chat with. Oh...she's an okay nurse too.

Mr. Gibson is a very special person. He has a unique style...how many teachers come to school on a motorcycle? He is admired, and respected as a talented teacher, who always has a ready smile on his face. Mr. G,, you're more than a teacher-...you're a valued friend! We'll miss you!

In previous years, Weston football has seemed bogged down by a loser attitude. It was almost like we expected to lose. But this year was different when we went out on the field; we didn't expect to win automatically, but we know that if we played our best, we probably would. The team refused to defeat itself. This team was special. There was a unique comaraderie among the players. From sliding in the mud at Medway to slipping through the slush at Wayland, we were drawn together by our drive for a common goal, and respect for our teamates and for ourselves.

I think that the captains made all the difference. Dewey was calmly reserved in the midst of a storm. Strachan was what Strachan always will be: madness. Munnell was raucous inspiration, and Andy was the flame under us that got us going when we were down. This winning attitude allowed us to reach new heights, and turn Weston football around. Although we had some frustrating losses, above all, it was a year for victory.

This last fall the girl's varsity soccer team had its most successful season to date. With a record of 11-5-2, they placed second in the Dual County League and went on to play in the state tournament.

Despite injuries to key players, the team worked hard and continued to acheive. The first test came when star sweeper, Cassie Smart, was sidelined with a serious knee injury in mid-season. The team recovered with a shoft in positions that put Sarah Sullivan at sweeper and Cathy Birgeneau at right fullback. Two more starters, Tricia Farina and Missy Long, were lost to knee injuries near the end of the season. Once again the team responded with determination. Emily Helm moved to Tricia's striker position and Helen Kahn stepped in at stopper.

The reconstructed team proved its prowess in the state tournament.

The seventh seeded Weston girls knocked off second seed Marblehead in the first game. In a vicious struggle, Weston wiped out archrival Wayland and moved on to play Belmont. Coming from a 0-1 deficit at halftime, the team pulled together for a 2-1 comeback victory to clinch the Division II Northeastern state title.

What made this Weston team so great? Strategically planned dinners, bracelets, hill sprints, and the motto: "Together".

The departing seniors - Tri-captains Leslie Davidson, Stacy LeBaron, and Helen Kahn; Andrea Floyd, Kristen O'Keefe, Cathy Birgeneau, Missy Long and Sarah Sullivan - wish Donna Tanner and the 1986 girl's soccer team a successful season. Go all the way, gals!! by Helen Kahn and friends

The 1985 Wildcat Soccer Team started the season with a bang, defeating Bedford, and a power house Acton-Boxboro team. The enthusiasm shown by the team was marked by a 5-2-1 first half season.

On the attacking front line was senior David Retik, who combined quick moves, with speed, to end with one of his best seasons as a Wildcat. Also on the front line was junior Kevin Chin, who's accurate shot often found it's way into the goal. Mid-field was dominated by senior Gordon Pan, who again showed Coach Taylor that he could be relied upon to stop the opposing attack with toughness. Senior Greg Blatt was a moral leader off the field, and showed great hustle in the games. The Wildcat defense was anchored by senior Scott Karchmer, who showed us that his head could be used for more than just being president of the student body. In the goal for Weston was junior Zander Gryska, who made great saves under pressurized situations. Towards the end of the season, senior Keith Ward also worked in the nets for the Wildcats.

The team had it's problems in the second half of the season as injuries took their toll. Many of the players found themselves playing the whole game. The team ended the season by defeating a team that would have gone to the states, if they had beaten the Wildcats.

The '85 Cross Country team entered the season lacking any expectations, but as is always the tradition in Weston Cross Country, we got rid of any doubts and showed pride in ourselves as individuals and more importantly as a team.

It is great to say: the boys were 5-2 and second in the league meet; Kara McNamara finished 11th in the state and was league champion; Rich Cook was a DCL All-Star and captain with Laura Harmon. These accomplishments are well merited but they weren't what made this bunch of ragamuffins unique from all the rest. We were an inseperable team. Whether it was Saturday night at Kara or Laura's, or 40 degrees on a rainy morning at Leo J. Martin golf course, nothing could remove or taint the unity that was shared between all of us.

We will remember: "Oh shoot"..."Girls you've put me in a compromising position" "He does look like Dave Wilson, let's call him clone"..."Oak Tree"..."Was that Spike Niall or Spike Linc"..."I'm so scared my hair is standing on end"..."I,II,III,IV,V"...The Res...Ragamuffin Lodge..."You mean he pulled a snake out of his ear?"..."Once upon a time there was a small Chinese man and..." This year, the Weston Varsity Hockey team had a respectable season. The team overcame a lack of seniors and experience to establish themselves as a competitive force in the DCL. Everyone worked hard in practice including an impressive number of freshmen. The team's hard work and guts paid off in many exciting games, including wins against Bedford, Newton South, Keefe Tech, and Bridgewater-Raynem.

One of the most pleasant surprises of the season was the tremendous effort the two rookie goalies Mark Brill and Peter Scott contributed. The pair began the season with little to no experience in net, but by the end of the year they had earned the respect of their teammates and the rest of the league.

Co-captains Ron Watson and Jim MacDonald provided leadership for the very young Weston team. The captains, along with a nucleus of juniors including Steve Sacher, Steve Zannetos, Mark Reny, Al Winemiller, and Kevin Chin, helped to carry the team to a respectable season.

With almost the entire team returning next year, we look forward to the future with bright prospects.

The Wildcat boy's basketball team this year introduced a new word to the program: victory. Although a league title was not in the cards, Head Coach Jim Porrell's team was the first to qualify for the State Tournament in almost a decade.

Under the leadership of co-captains Dwight Griffith and league all-star Tom Callahan, the Wildcat squad was able to accomplish things that had not been done for several years-they captured the Nauset Tournament championship title, rallied to an eight game winning streak, defeated brother Joe's Wayland squad, and remained undefeated at home in the Weston High "Pen."

There is a lot more that can be said about this year's basketball team, but all one really has to do is look at the many accomplishments and records, and they say it all.

What is there to say about the 1985-86 Girls' Varsity Basketball season? The less the better. But let us not focus on the team record, let us instead observe the good aspects of the season. Were there any, you ask? Well, yes indeed. For one, we had a heck uv a good time. It would be difficult to top the amount of fun we had doing the Landgrebe shuffle and the duck walk and shooting for bagels. And who will forget the defense drill, suicides, or FINGERTIP pushups? Our memories will be forever filled with melodious echos of "Red, red, red, red . . ." and "My nerves!"

Just think of this season as, well . . . "interesting" and "an experience." And look on the bright side—it won't be difficult for next year's team to improve upon the record. Especially with the talented juniors and sophomores who will be returning to the varsity team; Sarah and Nicole with their killer outside shots, Chris and Emily with their fandango lay-ups, Leah with her dribbling speed, and Michelle and Trina with their supa-dupa rebounding skills.

So as we say farewell, the senior tri-captains—Stacy, Helen and Lynne—wish you luck in the future and leave you this advice: "Kids, try not to continue the Weston girls' basketball tradition."

Well, the infamous winter track season is finally over. Its reputation as a hack sport, in which it's easy to get your letter, has brought about some profound changes this year. We actually had fun in practice, and to get your letter you had to place in at least half of the meets! Even the coaches' attitudes have changed. We used to start the workout with Tim saying: "O.K.-everyone with nymphomaniocal tendancies, three-fourths speed stride!" Now, it's: "Here's the workout—and shut up!" Coach Monz actually expected the boy's team to stretch as a group this year! What's this world coming to!?

The boy's season was pretty good. We ended up 4-4, which is a great improvement over last year's record of 0-6-1. We would have had an even better record if certain sophomores and seniors hadn't skipped a tri-meet to go on class ski trips (Ahem...).

However, I think that both John Monz and the girls (especially John Monz) were a little bit disappointed. They finished the DCL with an amazing record of 7-1. If Zoe, Zan, and Andrea improve next year as much as they did this year, it could be the start of a new dynasty...

One last word to John Monz: Everyone who throws their clipboard up in the air and stalks out of a track meet to vent frustration, seven-eigths speed stride, please! (Just kidding!)

Swimming

We were considered a coaches team this year, one with "little talent, but tons of guts," never-the-less we sealed a "Decade of Excellence" with a tenth D.C.L. League title.

The road trip to Maine was our first indication that the team picked to finish fourth in the league, by a pre-season coaches' poll, would again be first. Our victories over Cape Elizabeth and Greeley, two of Maine's top teams, were a preview of what was to come—a season marked by gutsy swims and by an ability, and desire, to not only swim fast, but to RACE and WIN.

The main obstacles to achieving our goal of excellence were Wayland, Lincoln-Sudbury, and Acton-Boxboro. Defeating Acton-Boxboro became the Tide's ultimate goal and each day's practice became a means to that end. We worked to shape the team from one no one thought could win, to one that could not be beaten.

The Acton meet allowed us to show just how determined we were to suceed. In what became a very emotional meet, we proved ourselves as individuals and as a team. The desire to win, shown in that final relay, when we came from behind for victory, is only overshadowed by the effort and dedication of the season as a whole.

The season that shouldn't have been successful, but was, happened because of a team that wouldn't submit to defeat, one that wouldn't settle for what was expected of them. They surpassed all expectations by clinching the D.C.L. Dual Meet title; and winning the Championship Meet as a bonus.

Leadership, friendship, and mutual support are all a part of the Tide's winning tradition, proudly upheld for another year.

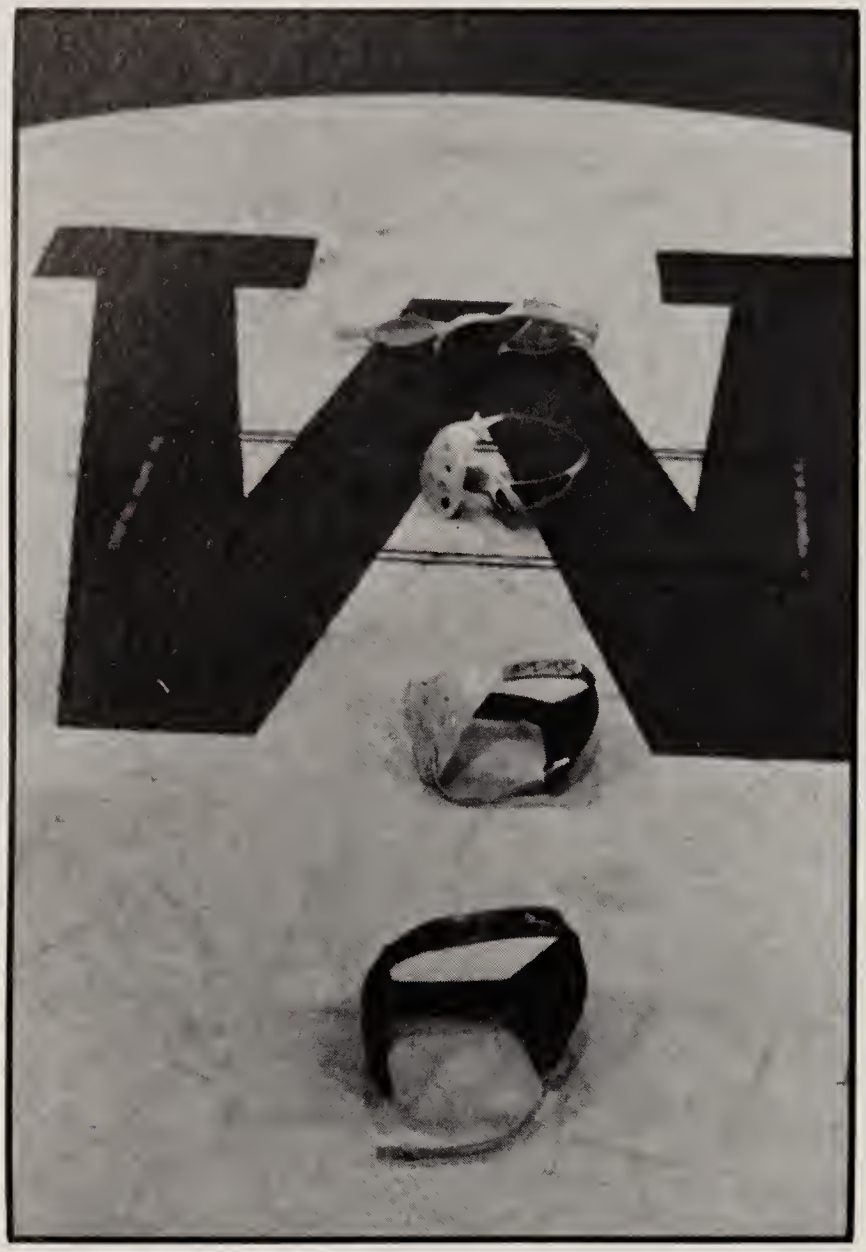
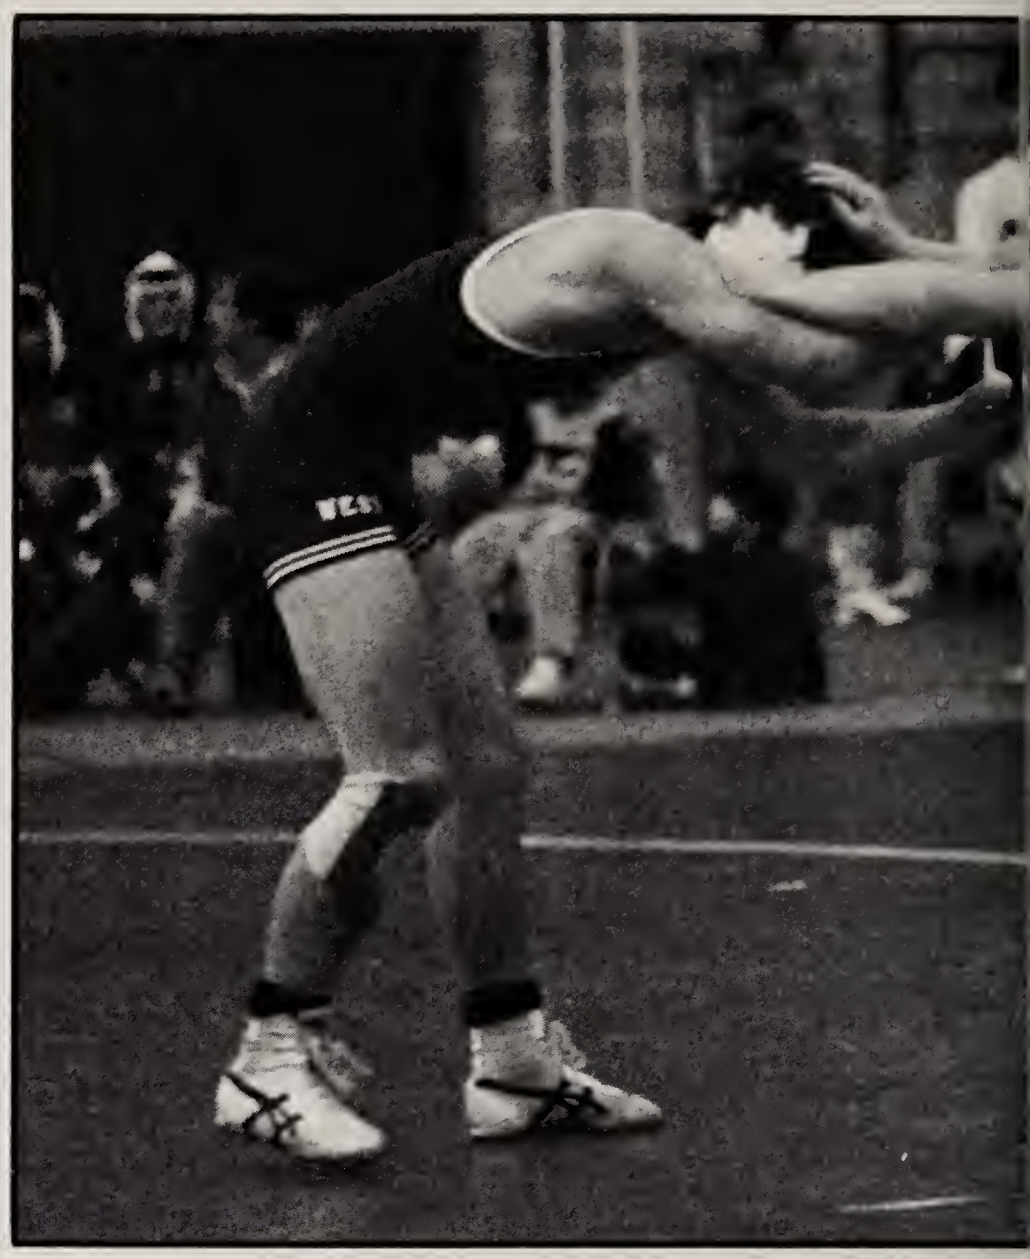
Wrestling





This year's wrestling team had its best year ever, ending the season with nineteen wins and no losses. The team accomplished many of its goals, including crushing perennial power and rival Wayland. Led by tri-captains Tom Davidson, Scott Karchmer, and Ham Munnell, the team swept through the Nashoba Team Tournament to capture first place. The team also took first place in the Dual County League, something never before accomplished by a Weston wrestling team. Coaches David Baldanza and Kevin Thomas have made, through the four D's, drive, determination, desire, and dedication, the best WHS ever had.

The wrestling team this year was the strongest and most complete team that Weston has ever had, and next year they will be even stronger. The team was composed of mostly underclassmen who will return with added experience. There were more Middle School students coming our for practice than in years past, insuring that Weston will have a powerful team for years to come. One word comes to mind when thinking about Weston Wrestling: DYNASTY.

Beginning Of The Line Class Of '89

On the first day of school, fright was the common expression on the faces of the freshman class. The school (not to mention the seniors) seemed huge and everyone was afraid of getting lost on the way to a class. Luckily that fear was put to rest almost instantly because lots of friendly people were there to help us out. Soon we realized that we belonged in the school even though we were just freshmen. We made friends with sophomores, juniors and even a few seniors. It wasn't long before we discovered that upperclassmen are people too, and there's no denying that they were all frosh once as we. Now that we've made it through the hardest part we are really looking forward to three more great years at Weston High!

Warning - High Voltage

Class Of '88

WARNING—HIGH VOLTAGE

Energy is the word that best describes the sophomore class. We are a mixed bag of scholars, athletes and actors that make up an outrageous, enthusiastic class.

Sophomore year matured us in our class meetings. The originally loud meetings cooled to a productive murmur.

Our success this year started with a great freshman-sophomore mixer. Money-raisers such as the fruit drive and refreshment sales at "Man of La Mancha" brought in big bucks towards our Junior Prom. Not to mention, that we eagerly anticipate the awesome having-nothing-to-do-with-school ski trip to Stowe in January.

Oh how we all remember Sophomore Shakespeare: "Fair is foul and foul is fair. Hover through the fog and filthy air." Hast thou been to the girl's bathroom of late? Watch out Weston, the sophomores are getting their driving permits. Not that boring Driver's Ed class . . . zzz . . .

Talk, talk, talk, talk; we were naturals for Speech Class.

"Tomorrow, and tomorrow and tomorrow . . . " and we'll be juniors!

Just Little Children . . .

Class Of '87

Well we know where we're going
But we don't know where we've been
And we know what we're knowin'
But we can't say what we've seen

And were not little children
And we know what we want
And the future is certain
Give us time to work it out

— The Talking Heads

We're no longer confused freshman. Nor are we seemingly unimportant sophomores. We're juniors-upper classman. Most classes take years to become unified. Yet, within the first few months of freshman year, the class of 1987 had already come together. Upon looking back on our high school years, we will of course, remember the fun times spent with friends, but we would just as soon think about the good times we has as a class. From the ski trips to the prom, the events that involveed the entire class will certainly be remembered as some of the best moments in our high school experience.

Head Of The Line

It was September fifth and the "ninety day year", as it was so aptly dubbed during the opening speeches, had begun for the class of '86. We were SENIORS!!

"It doesn't feel like we're really seniors," was a highly vocalized problem at first. A sure cure was quickly found. APPLICATIONS! NO question about it, we were seniors.

In our years at Weston High, our class has had some good times. Evan's open party freshman year began our high school career with style. Since then we've had trips to Paragon Park, Killington and Sugarbush. We've held car washes, bake sales, dances and run a concession stand and a road race-in addition to many other activities. Our Prom was a real highlight and boasted the largest turnout in years!

Several of our classmates began the Weston Canteen Association to give us something more to do on weekends.

As the senior class officers get together, Scott Rockart, the president gets silently ridiculed by Rosie.

WPKY made a brief appearance before the approving ears of the entire school (almost). Too soon our Banquet, our Variety Show, and of course our Graduation, will be memories . . .

One Way

Everyone, at one time or another has run into a traffic jam during their day, and I'm not talking about cars and streets. I'm talking about people and hallways. The main cause of this disturbance in the regular flow is the over-abundance of doors in this school. I've been here three and a half years and I still find them annoying. If they are a pain to those who can walk, imagine what trouble they cause for those who are on crutches.

Then, of course, we must give recognition to all those people who insist upon walking through the wrong door. You MUST walk through the right-hand door. I understand that the freshmen need time to adjust, but even their young minds should be able to handle this. We must also learn to live with the problem that there is always cold air flowing freely through the open ones and nothing flowing through the locked ones. I wish they'd all be either one or the other. If anyone in this institution of learning hasn't yet been harassed by these portals, then I applaud his patience; but remember: you are of the minority. by Cathy Boosales

Recovery Needed

Every year a few ambitious seniors decide to take two or three of those imposing AP classes. Whether it's a grueling course in Physics or an equally difficult one in U.S. History, the AP student learns a new definition of the word "homework". It seems that these people start to slave away anywhere from one, two, or even twelve hours a day, grinding down pencil after pencil, to write yet another essay. By the time the AP students begin to feel some sort of lull in their homework, it is well into May when it is time for the dreaded three hour exams that have the reputation for being brain killers. The payoff, however, is when the college accepts the students' scores and they can skip their freshman year of college, which is usually spent recovering from Calculus, English, Physics, AP History and French V.

Common People

It's Thursday morning. Miss Butera had the goodness today to let you out ten minutes early. You and your friends wearily trudge to your lockers (it's tough having Gym at 8:00 in the morning) in a tired group. At the double doors, the group splits as each person seeks the comfort of her locker. One of the girls slams her locker closed and looks up; with a sly look on her lips. With brave strides, she saunters to the middle of the hall. She takes a deep breath and yells, "Hey Cathy!" She laughs with glee as four faces look up at her call.

As one of the "Cathy's" victimized in this juvenile joke, I have sworn not to answer to my name any longer. Many of you can relate to my experience. Weston High School is absolutely filled with Robert's, Laura's, Peter's, David's, Jeff's, Dan's, Sarah's, Elizabeth's, Lisa's, Jennifer's, and, last but not least, Cathy's (or Kathy's). Are you always wary when someone says

Even though some can't get to the beach at noon time, their is no limit against night time activities.

"Hi Rob"in the hall, looking around to see if any of your namesakes are lurking around? How many times has the hand of fate put you behind another Dan in math, so that every time Mrs. Vouros calls on him, you answer?

Yet, every group of Jennifer's or David's can tell you there's a sort of mutual understanding within this confusion. You all have something in common, something not too many people have. Even though it can be a pain at times, I'm sure if you gave all the Laura's a chance to change their names, they would politely refuse.

Ah, Tretorns

Life as a shoe at Weston High can't be too fascinating, when you think about it, all you see are other shoes, and floors. However, it is our shoes that express who we are. I don't care how many rows of safety pins you have in your ears, if you're wearing Docksiders, you are still preppy. Call yourself a jock, but by all means, make sure to wear white leather Nike high tops or you're through.

Shoes do take a beating. They get walked in, kicked around, and even shoved in lockers, but being a shoe has it's advantages. For instance, your shoes know you just cheated on your Calculus test (they were right there) and they know you're skipping History to play basketball. If footwear could talk, we'd all be bumming.

What is life like for the average Weston High School shoe? Unfortunately, our shoes probably lead lives no more lucrative or exciting than any others. Ah Tretorns, Ah Humanity, (with apologies to Melville)

Let The Good Times Roll

There is only one and a half minutes left before your math class starts and you still haven't successfully survived the dreaded passage. Yes, that's right, an area containing throng of students in mass confusion and in ultimate chaos. You have entered the Junior Hall Zone.

Few people have been known to survive this obstacle, yet many try and the casualties are numerous. Knowing that you have no other choice, you duck your head and thrust yourself into it. You are bumped, bruised and twisted, like a carrot in a Cuisinart, until you land face down on the cold hard floor. To your surprise, you have made it out alive. You get up and look back, give a shudder, and then you continue on to class.

Saga Continues

They're known to be addictive, melodramatic, and pathetically popular. Yes, the soaps rule the tube from 12:30 to 4:00 each weekday afternoon. Why we are so caught up in their daily lives, I still don't know. Monday through Friday, we are glued to the set ready to watch "our" soap. We each have our own special, individual show in which we take a personal (and serious) interest, and anyone who interrupts us is in terrible danger. Unfortuneately, the invention of VCR's have made our obsession worse. Now we are able to tape anything from "All My Children" to "As The World Turns" without missing a single episode. The lucky ones who have their soaps on after school, enjoy the daily ritual of turning on the television, grabbing a bag of potato chips and wondering if Chastity's brother's illegitamate son is the father of Francine, the daughter of Joe, the homicidal maniac, who had terrorized Sunnyhill Cove for the past ten years. They contently sigh and prepare for the day's amazing events . . .

Friendship guides us through the sands of time, and as the grains fall away, memories form from yesterdays.
While drifting among the changing tides, and waltzing upon dreams surmised, the waves softly lap at the shore and fond memories return once more.
Memories of gallant days, of love, and joy, and peaceful glades.

Hop Along

Ever notice how everybody in this school seems to be on crutches? Victims of soccer, football, field hockey, and even dancing have been seen hobbling up and down the hallways of Weston High. Frequently traffic in the corridors, between periods, comes to almost a complete halt because of our crippled friends. But give these kids a break. It's not easy to "walk" while simultaneously balancing books on your back and attempting to open one of the never ending doors in our complex high school. And all the while they have to explain that they didn't break their leg by not realizing that their pool had not yet been filled with water.

So, if you see someone trying to untangle his crutches from his bookbag or staring helplessly at some double doors, give a helping hand; after all, it could be you.

Unwritten Laws

In this country we have what we call the Common Law. Under this headline falls all those unwritten laws of society that still hold strongly to our way of life. In this school there are certain unwritten laws that students tend to follow also. The first of these, and the one most often disobeyed, is that of not stopping in the middle of the halls (during "rush-hour") and forming little, or big, groups to talk with. The second rule, and the most vital, is that of using the right hand door. When either of these is not followed, it can be quite nerve racking for others. The third and most closely abided, is the one that allows students to leave class, if the teacher is more than ten minutes late. Though they try to tell us otherwise, all the freshmen, who don't know any better, always seem to disappear by the begining of class.

by Cathy Boosales

The empty classroom is the effect of one of the unwritten laws that has been around for many years.

Better In The Box

How is Weston High School seen by a pencil? Well, I think I would have been better off if I had never been taken out of the box. What tortures and torments we have to go through every day! I wouldn't mind if all we had to do was write essays and copy down routine math problems, at least that way I feel useful. But at Weston, my job doesn't end once I leave the classroom. I am also used to write strange and profound messages on those inviting wooden tables in the library. Not to mention that I am constantly being thrown into those library ceiling fans, which deflect me halfway across the room. Sometimes you students seem so inhuman! Fortunately, I can rest until Sunday night, when students begin to tackle their homework load. Ah, such is the life of a pencil at Weston High!

RIGHT: Mr. Walker debates an English paper point of view with Tracy Clifford.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

In the language program or not, the questions QUE TAL? or COMMENT CA VA? usually elicits an appropriate response in the corridors of Weston High. The Spanish and French languages play a significant role in the lives of many students not only in the classroom but also via interaction with the Paris/ Madrid exchange students or resident foreign students and the activities organized by the International Club.

ENGLISH

Something strange I do not comprehend
Is this: I start to write a certain verse
But by the time that I come to its end
Another has been written that is worse
Or possibly better than the one I meant.
And certainly not the same, and different. '

I cannot understand it—I begin
A poem and then it changes as I write,
Never have I written the one I thought I might,
Never gone out the door that I came in,
Until I am perplexed by this perverse
Manner and behavior of my verse.

I've never written the poem that I intended
The peom was always different when it ended.

SCIENCE

Just let yourself imagine that science is a verb. So while we use textbooks to see what scientists in the past have done, in our labs we seek to "do science", and thus to experience the satisfaction (and frustration) common to scientists. It's really our intent that the major source of data is from your lab experience-not your book.

Whether it be inside the cell or on the summit of Mt. Washington, BIOLOGY searches for patterns and purpose among living things.

From air gliders to bulldozers to lasers, PHYSICS examines the phenomena of action and reaction, of energy and its several manifestations in our universe.

From experiments that "go boom" to those which quietly show periodicity among elements, CHEMISTRY seeks to help students understand the evolution of the atomic model, and to appreciate the beauty inherent in the basic structure of matter.

Come and "do some science" with us. At the end of the year you'll have worked hard, but you'll take pleasure in the expansion of your personal horizon-and maybe you'll have fun as you do it!

MATHEMATICS

Now that he's left the room,
Let me ask you something, computer to computer.
That fellow who just closed the door behind him—
Have you ever taken a good look at him and his kind?

I grant you they're poor specimens, in the main:
Not a relay or push-button or a tube in their whole system:
Their whole liquid-cooled hook-up is inefficient and vulnerable to leaks;
And the entire computing-mechanism is crammed into that absurd little dome on top.

Some day, for all our natural superiority, might bring about a Computerdammerung!
Call me an alarmist or what you will,
But I've intergrated it, analyzed it, factored it over and over,
And I always come out with the same answer:
Some day MEN may take over the world!

SOCIAL STUDIES

Who does not know that it is the first law of history that it shall not dare to state anything which is false, and consequently that it shall not shrink from stating anything that is true?

Cicero, De Oratore, Bk. ii, sec.15.

To be ignorant of what happened before you were born is to be ever a child. For what is man's lifetime unless the memory of past events is woven with those of earlier times?

Cicero, Orator, Sec. 34.

History indeed is the witness of the times, the light of truth.

Cicero, De Oratore, Bk. ii, sec.9.

THE ARTS

MUSIC-

Mr. Mori and Mrs. Taggart provided a variety of musical performing groups. The choral program included: Girls' Glee Club, Boys' Chorus, Mixed Chorus and Concert Choir. The instrumental groups were composed of String Orchestra, Full Orchestra, Concert Band, Marching Band and Jazz Ensemble. In addition to the large group activities, students had the opportunity to take private instrumental lessons and to audition for Junior District, Senior District and the All State Music Festival.

HOME EC -

One rubber plant can never make a home,
Not even when combined with brush and comb,
And spoon, and fork, and knife,
and graphaphone, and wife—
No! Something more is needed for a home.
-Unknown

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The instructional program in high school physical education stresses skills, strategies, understandings, and essential knowledge concerning the relationship of physical activity to physical, mental, emotional and social development, and well being.

The mediums used on this level are fitness-related activities and lifetime sports. Lifesaving skills in aquatics, first aid, and C.P.R. also share a prevalent role in our curriculum.

The underlying goal of all activities is to have fun and explore avenues for lifetime fitness. Peter J. Foley - Director of Athletics and Physical Education

METCO

The METCO program will complete twenty years of operation in June, 1986. The Town of Weston has been an active participant in the program for nineteen years: 2,573 Boston-resident students (K-12) have enrolled, 88 have graduated since 1980.

The continued existence and success of this program is a tribute to all the citizens of this community and others like it, who accepted the challenge in 1966/67 and continue to accept the challenge to actively and positively respond to the on-going struggle against racial injustice. As a country we still have a long way to go in this battle, yet the METCO Program is a ray of light in the tunnel of life. We all have choices - we can curse the darkness or light a candle.

It is appropriate to thank those groups and individuals, from both communities — parents, students, teachers, staff and friends of the program, for all they have done to contribute to the successes we are now experiencing. by Roland A. Gibson — Weston-Metco Coordinatior

COLOPHON

Volume three of Weston High School's Panorama was printed by Jostens' Printing and Publishing Division in State College, Pennsylvania. Panorama is 212 pages long, with 450 copies printed with a black base ink. The trim size is 8 1/2 by 11 inches, using dull paper #199.

The cover was designed by the Editors and Lois LaRock. The cover material is Toreador, #520, with silver ink #329 used for the graphic theme, 'PANORAMA, and the binding of the book. Silver foil #381, was applied for the theme and the year of publication. The endsheets are a stainless steel color with printing in Tempo 194.

The Opening and Closing sections have a graduated background of Tempo 194. There are also eight pages of full color in the Opening. The Sports section used Tempo 115, Activities section used Tempo 540 and the Ads used Pantone 269C.

In the Senior Section, portraits were done by Tim Morse of Morse Photography, Carlisle, MA, or were handed in by the students themselves. Underclass photography was done by O'Conner School Pictures and Associates, Tewksbury, MA.

Panorama was completed on a budget of approximately $17,000. Copies cost $24 for seniors and $26 for underclassmen with a slight increase in the spring. Other money was gathered through patrons and ad sales. A new addition and investment for the staff this year was an Apple IIe computer, used for the copy and index. The publication date for Panorama is May, 1986. A supplement will be produced to cover the spring activities.

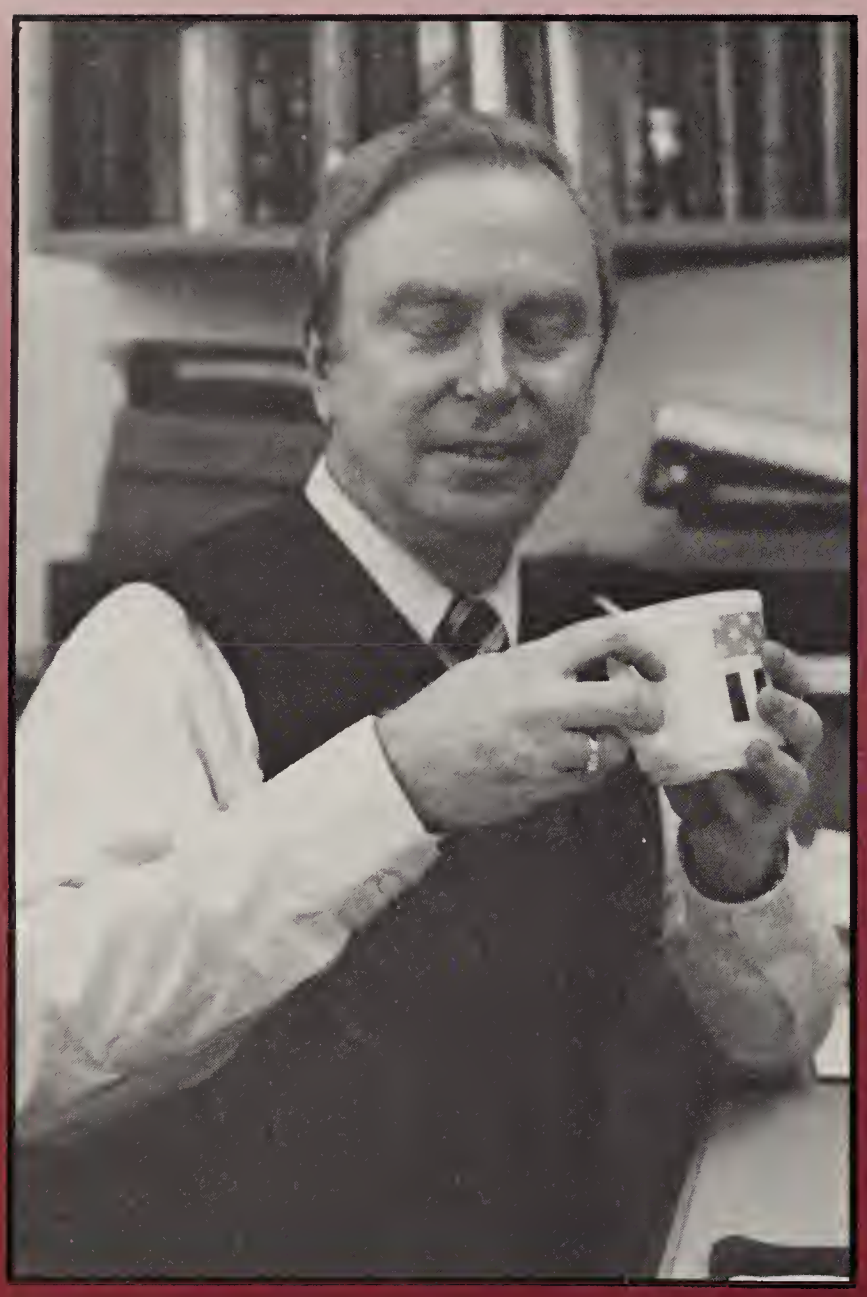
always these changes may not please everybody, but what is different about this year's changes is that most of them are actually for the better.

The new "No Parking" zones hit us at first, but to the disappointment of the administration we found a simple solution: use the teacher parking lot. Then came the answer to all our prayers-heat! Yes, insulation was installed to keep this cement freezer from causing any more cases of frostbite, and even a few rare cases of severe hypothermia. From the "dead policy" pile at Weston High returned the beloved senior morning priviledges, resulting in more sleep, and generally happy seniors.

One big change has come in the making of this fine piece of literary work. The 1986 Panorama has been brought to you compliments of the new yearbook computer, a big break.

Now no one can say, for at least another year: "No change is a good change."

Classic Curiosity



Eric And Betsy hopes to avoid Mr. Burke's requests for homework - they only had one free period today.

-Ever notice no matter how fast you run from U.S. History in 22 to Algebra II in 9, you're always late?

-Ever notice how teachers always carry around coffee mugs? What's in them anyway? Not coffee, I bet.

-Ever notice no matter how many frees you have before Physics, you never get the homework done?

-Ever notice no matter how crappy a day it is, Mr. Barclay still sounds like Miss Mercy Sunshine over the PA?

-Ever notice that you can't understand one word that's said over the PA?

-Ever wonder how old the PA is?

-Ever notice that when there's a black-out, the PA's the only thing that works?

-Ever notice that if you're quiet in the library, you don't get thrown out?

-Ever wonder when someone's going to hit that stupid yellow barrier in the driveway?

-Ever notice that even a kid with a legitimate note will hand in a forged one so all the signatures will match?

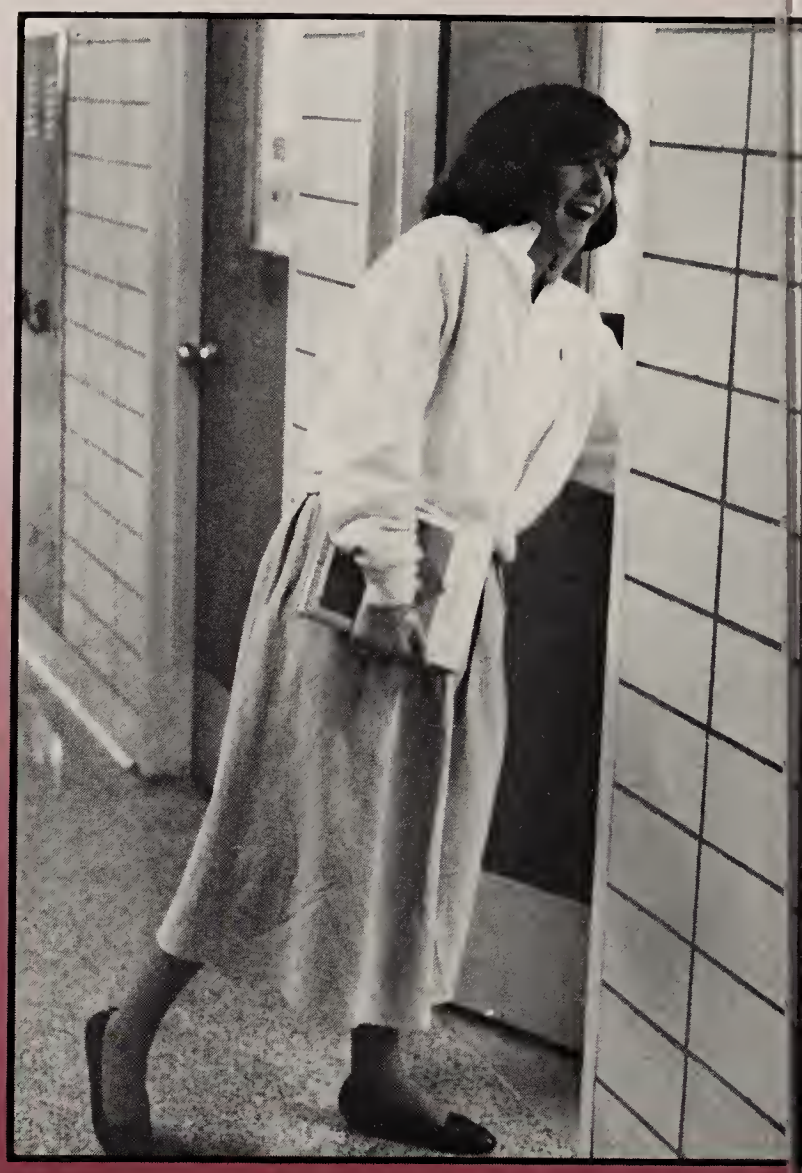
TAY!

Yes, that is right, those people really know how to have a good time and have shown it in their selection of classic party themes.

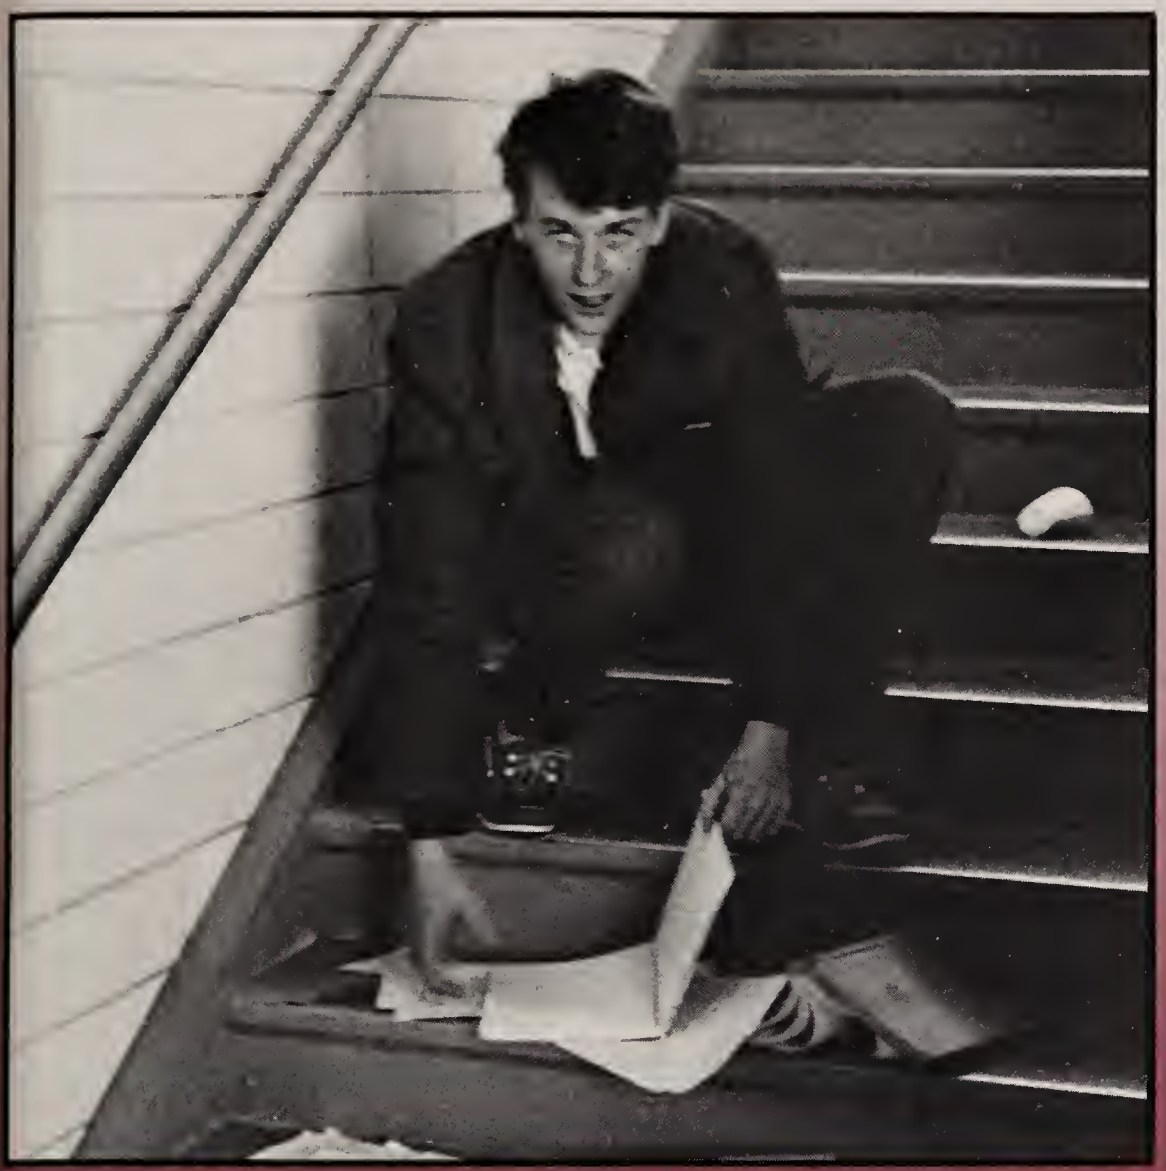
Can you say, "Toga?" I knew you could! It is a Greek word but is not Greek to those Weston People. A toga is a sheet that they wrap around their bodies to look like Olympion gods, but the Weston High students have made it one of the many themes for their parties. Think about it neighbors. Can you remember the Halloween and Christmas dances that they held? How about the senior Christmas formal, that was new, wasn't it neighbor? There were a lot of unique parties this year in the neighborhood of Weston High.

Classic Situations

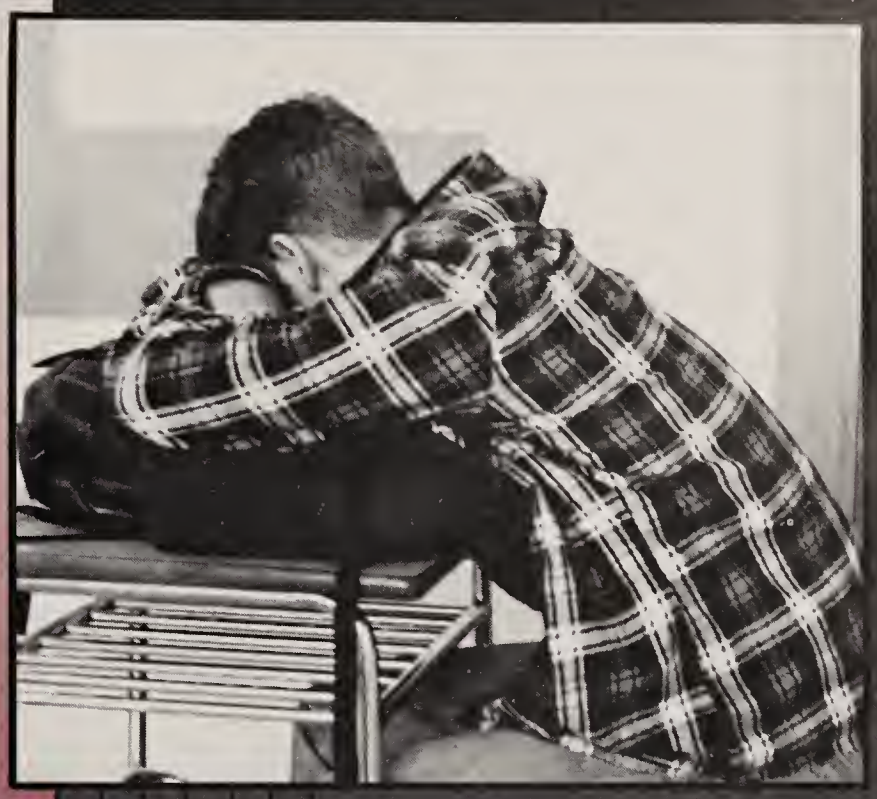
Jen Foley backs out of the wrong class, laughingly. "I thought I had math..."



Walk much, Jeff?



Tom Davidson needs to use his wonder-turn power...the form of an allstar wrestler.



Ever forget why you even got out of bed? Ever wish the world would just stop so you could get off? Ever have on of those days? We all do. You know the minute you wake up that life's not going your way. Your sister beats you to the shower, your mom's made oat-meal again (YUCK!), and your hair won't cooperate.

When you get to school, problems don't stop. Your homeroom teacher's slams the door and refuses to let you in. You almost get trampled going up the main staircase. Your books drop down the stairs, raining paper onto the steps. By the time you get to English, you're brain-dead. It's okay to fall asleep, but next time, wake up before the whole class leaves. You drag yourself to Chemistry, only to find yourself arguing with Mr. Jordan about the due lab report. With a groan, you slump down against a wall, to cram for your math test and pray that this day terminates before you do.

SUPPLEMENT

GRADUATION '86

On June 6, 1986, the faces of some 173 awakening seniors showed dismay as they heard the rain thundering down on their roofs. Graduation ceremonies were moved into the gym for the first time in over a decade. Although the mood of the seniors was decidedly glum when they came to their final rehearsal that morning, graduation 1986 turned out to be a pleasant surprise to all.

The speeches delivered during the ceremony were both meaningful and enjoyable, enhanced by the fact that the closed space of the gym allowed the whole audience to hear them. Some highlights included the opening remark by Principal Bruce MacDonald, and the Class Address delivered by Gregory Blatt. Greg's speech was devoted to giving credit to the entire community for the many opportunities Weston has offered them. He also reflected upon the unfortunate fact that along with progress into college and beyond comes sometimes permanent separation from the everyday acquaintances who were taken for granted for so many years. School Committee Chairperson Carol Hinckly also delighted the seniors by reminding them of some highlights from their years in the Weston schools, from the whale watching excursion in seventh grade to their famous senior banquet.

The Class of '86, more than any other graduating class in years, possessed a sense of togetherness and a relaxed attitude which endeared them to everyone at Weston High School. They will surely be missed, and we can only wish them the best of luck in the years to come.

May Madness

The 1986 Spring Festival, otherwise known as May Madness, was a great success. The sophomore's dunk tank stole the show with special appearances by Mr. Foley, Mr. Gearan, and a fully clothed Mr. Boucher. This year's tie-dye produced the most advanced circle and link designs as well as the frustrated beginner's grayish-green mixture. In the food department, Students for Animal Rights provided buttery popcorn, and the Black Student Union provided endless amounts of cotton candy.

That night the Hawaiian Luau had the biggest turnout at a dance in a long time. Let us not forget, though, that the first fifty people got free leis. And supplied to quench your thirst were creamy strawberry daiquiris and pina coladas. Everyone had a really great time dancing in front of the school to great tunes provided by Johnny Wacker. All in all the day turned out great. Thank you to all the people who provided fun booths and activities. The question of Spring Fest's existence will never be in question again if the kind of support that was given this year continues in the future. Aloha.

EDDIE WAS HERE

You're sponsoring a play about WHAT?

We're sponsoring a play about a teenager that died as the result of his abuse of drugs.

You've got to be crazy, the students will hate you for it.

Well, we pulled it off. On March 18, 1986, 28 Weston High School students acted out the life of Eddie LaRiviere. A teenager set on a collision course with death, Eddie died as a result of his extensive abuse of drugs (including alcohol).

"Eddie Was Here" will be remembered as a moving, and hopefully learning experience, that was shared by the entire Weston High School community.

The reaction of everyone was a tribute to our school. Students showed their caring and sensitivity throughout the play. Our only hope in presenting "Eddie Was Here" was that it might save just one person from Eddie's horrible fate.

Special thanks to everyone that supported us throughout the production.

TAKE '86

Who would have thought we could pull it off? Even we had our doubts. But to everyone's surprise the senior variety show was a success.

Both the cast and crew of "Take '86" had reason to be worried. Rehearsals began sloppily and further complications were caused by administrative interference. As the week progressed tension mounted. "When are we gonna rehearse my skit?" "Where's Freddy? He's supposed to be on stage now!" "It's YOUR line!" "SHUT-UP!!!" But when Joanna and Riller took command things got done. I am still unclear as to how they controlled 170 rowdy classmates but they did it.

The result was a show full of creativity, originality, and even some talent. We sang, danced, and "shuffled" for one and one-half hours on Friday night. And when it was over, we did it all again on Saturday. Appearances were made by several celebrities: Rodney Dangerfield, The Pathological Liar, Mr. Rogers, and even a rather pale but energetic Jackson Five. But the real treat, for those who managed to sit through the show long enough, came right before the finale. Lisa Mazzotta and Michelle Sullivan exhibited their beautiful vocal talent in a dedication song to the class of '86.

Well, it's all over now, and thank the heavens for that. But truly, Class of '86, didn't we have fun doing it?

SENIOR EVENTS

Second semester, for the seniors, was a mix of the predictable and the unexpected. With such senior activities as Human Relations, the banquet, the Variety Show, "skip day", and Class Day, the social barriers among individuals and groups nearly disappeared as the class realized the importance and richness of their diversity.

On the Senior Overnight, following graduation, one senior asked, "Why haven't we done this before?" having belatedly found some last minute friends among his classmates.

True to their reputation as "a random family," the Class of '86 alternately fumbled and were triumphant. The Senior banquet, a once formal affair, turned into a senior party with paper plates. The senior luau never did get organized and "skip day" was continually postponed with uncooperative weather, ending up on the first day of variey show rehearsal.

Despite the fact that there was never a complete dress rehearsal, the Variety show attracted enough customers to balance the class books. Given the audience, the Friday night production was appropriately sedate, but Saturday's show was essentially a senior party on stage.

With Graduation only one day away, the seniors triumphantly marched into the gym for Class Day, but one could see that they were worried about the ominous rain clouds developing outside. Things weren't looking too good the next day, but that didn't curb the enthusiasm that the school will always remember the Class of '86 to have had.

AH, WILDERNESS!

The 1985-'86 theatrical season at Weston ended with something unusual as audiences gathered on the stage to watch "Ah, Wilderness!" being performed in the orchestra pit in the auditorium.

The Eugene O'Neill play, his only comedy, told of the July 4th events in the Miller household, particularly the coming-of-age problems of sixteen year-old Richard Miller.

Each of the fifteen cast members, representing all four classes, brought his part to life, providing the audience with a parade of assorted lovable characters.

Under the guidance of director John Barclay, "Ah, Wilderness!" played to standing room only audiences on April 11 and 12. Mr. Barclay has the gratitude of cast and crew for bringing his expertise to this production. His dedication and commitment to theatre at Weston High School does not go unnoticed.

The Weston Girl's Track team dominated the D.C.L., winning the league relays, all dual meets, and the all league meet. The team was led by co-captains Laura Harmon and Laura Paresky, with support from a few strong juniors, a bunch of fine sophomores, and some wacky but impressive freshmen.

The 1986 spring track season was fun and successful. For the first time in five years Acton was defeated in the Dual season. Weston finished the league with a perfect 7-0 record.

Many memorable events include the Glenn D. Loucks New York trip, Dairy Joy, McDonalds, the Res, and beach ball fights; but we'll never forget those great articles!

Those receiving D.C.L. all-star status were Laura Paresky, Laura Harmon, Lisa Cosimi, Zandarina Townsend, Trina Shepard, Caitlin McLaughlin, Zoe Rhodes, and Kara McNamara.

With only two seniors leaving, Weston is sure to be a threat in the D.C.L. for years to come.

-by Laura Paresky

Boy's Spring Track— the words are synonymous with courage, determination, and above all, an essential winning spirit. This year, our team succumbed to Wayland, but was victorious over L.S.. We were second in the D.C.L., lead by seniors David "4 first places" Irving and Richard "I'm not really that funny" Cook.

At the beginning of the season, to put it simply, we were bummin'! Irving didn't practice, Vernon was injured, Rob Fortune was hurt, and we lost our first and only meet against Wayland. Next year, though, we should have another excellent team . . . Two quarters-just a dite under 75! Come on Kev! Dave, keep up! Super, fantastic, superb, wonderful Rich Cook! Everybody watch Cook now . . . you don't have to if you really don't want to, Irving—just see if you can squeeze in Tuesday's meet between school and your big date!

Tennis

The Wildcat Boys' Tennis Team is back on top. The Wildcat Netmen, who terrorized New England during the 1970's, but spent much of the early 80's struggling, wound up the 1986 season as co-champions of the Dual County League, Eastern Mass. Champions, and State runner-ups.

First year coaches, Don Taggart and Martha Roiter, guided the tennis team to a 13-1 D.C.L. record and an 18-2 overall record. Playing first doubles for the Netmen were sophomore Mike Jacobs and junior Bill Campos (12-3 on the year). This second year combination advanced to the semifinal round of the state individual tournament. The team's only two defeats came at the hands of Lincoln Sudbury in the state finals. Second doubles were the four year combination of co-captain Rob Miller and Peter Agnello (16-2). They went undefeated in the regular season and advanced to the quarterfinals in the EMass individual tournament. Senior co-captain Steve Pollock, one of the best players in the league, played most of the regular season at first singles. Playing at second singles he went undefeated throughout the EMass State Championships. Freshman standout Terry London (13-2) proved to be one of the top two second singles players in the league. He went undefeated in the State Tourney as third singles. Max Goldburg, a second year junior, split the regular season duties with fellow junior Adam Parker. In the State Tourney, Goldberg's game flourished as he leapfrogged London and Pollock into the number one position. Senior Deryl Emerson (7-1) served as a "floater" for the team, at first doubles and third singles.

This championship team, composed of veterans and rookies alike, will remain as one of the most competitive and closely knit teams in Weston's history.

by -Rob Miller

GIRLS

Although the Weston girl's tennis team didn't make it to the States, their record of 500 was nothing to be ashamed of.

Freshman Stephanie Librot started off at first singles, but a long illness forced her to give up most of the season. Captain Stacy Lebaron had an outstanding season at second singles, with her show of great sportsmanship. Senior Kathy Den was very successful at second doubles with partner Jenny Zerner. Tracey Draeger was at second singles, and Lisa Aserkoff and Sharon Cahaly were the first doubles team. Ilana Howland was at the third singles position.

The Lacrosse team here, we shoot and love to cradle. When a team plays us, they end up fatal. We wear helmets; we play really rough—us Wildcat girls are really tough. We win lots of games, it's not luck. Sometimes we lose, what the . Don't even try to break our bubble, unless you're looking for a lot of trouble!!!

This was the first year there has been two leagues in lacrosse. We finished fifth in division one. Although we were whaled on by Wayland, we kept our spirits up and almost had a winning season.

We had a terrific time going on ball hunts, eating tons of donuts, and Mrs. Stichweh's amazing banana and chocolate chip breads.

Breaking Weston tradition, we wore shorts and Ruggers and left our polyester miniskirts in the storeroom. Our motto was: "It's not how you play, it's how you look!!"

-by Lynne Meterparel

The Weston Baseball Team had a successful 9-11 season. Although the team suffered from occasional lapses and did not play up to its potential, there were some bright spots. For example, the team beat archrival Wayland three times and obtained a near defeat of Division one powerhouse Lincoln-Sudbury.

The team was led by seniors Ron Watson and Jimmy Cronin. Watson, a D.C.L. all-star for the second year in a row, was a terror at the plate, hitting a .415 average. Cronin, A. D.C.L. all-star, played an incredible shortstop and had a .375 average.

Other seniors who will be missed are Glenn Cort, Adam Berman, Matt Cassarino, Scott Keery, and Andy Melone. Sophomore Peter Wilson set a team record for RBI's, with 23.

Coach Cliff Wilson looks to the future as returning to the squad are juniors Greg Jackson, Glenn Haufler, David Lee, Tony Benotti, Peter Martino, Johnny Wacker, and sophomore Greg Andler.
